

Enjoy

Back to the Moon For Good

at the University of Rhode Island Planetarium

on Saturday, August 12, 2017 at 6:00 P.M.

Contact: Francine Jackson: 401-527-5558

It's been over 48 years since humans have walked on the Moon. But, are there plans to go back? Should we? Could we? How could this happen? Please join the URI Planetarium as it plays this award-winning show about the possibility of returning to our one and only natural satellite. Back to the Moon for Good will be shown Saturday, August 12th, at 6:00 P.M.

This program, for the general audience, will be preceded by a short program on light pollution,

Losing the Dark

and will be followed by a live segment showing

The Skies of the URI campus

an introduction to the night sky.

The University of Rhode Island Planetarium is available for programming for schools and other organizations.

Contact: Francine Jackson: 401-527-5558